Excerpt from Play Ground Equipment Trees set out around the fence and in the yard so as not to interfere with the various games will add much to the comfort and beauty of any school ground. Honeysuckle vine if planted every eight or ten feet along the fence, will within a year or so, entirely cover it. The recess periods are perhaps the most important periods of the day and teachers and pupils, all, should be on the play ground. The various games should be assigned to places where they will not interfere with other games in other spaces.
