Excerpt from The Wood-Using Industries of Oregon: With Special Reference to the Properties and Uses of Oregon Woods The State of Oregon is reported to have nearly four hundred billion feet of standing timber, an amount equal to approximately one-sixth of that now remaining in the United States. It would seem that Oregon should be among the foremost lumber producing states, but, owing to the present inaccessibility of much of the timber, its operation is greatly retarded. Oregon ranked ninth in 1909 in the production of lumber, having cut nearly two billion feet, and it is very probable that the 1910 cut will equal and possibly exceed the above amount. Of the two billion feet of lumber annually sawed in this state, four hundred million is shipped out by water and eight hundred million by rail. Of the remaining eight hundred million board feet consumed in the state, approximately 25 per cent is further manufactured into the various products considered in this report. The balance goes into general building and construction work. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
